Brainy Matters.

The weight of the human brain varies, according to age and sex. It must also be noted that the cause of death has a considerable influence upon the brain, either increasing or decreasing its weight. Thus, among acute maladies, diphtheria is said to be a remarkable frequent cause of the augmentation of the brain's weight. As regards the age, the mean weight of the newborn in the first eight days is, with boys, 371 grams (one gram equal 15.432 grains), with girls, 361 grams. At the end of the first year of life the respective weight are 967 and 893 grams. At the end of the third year the brain's weight has tripled. After that time the brain increases but slowly, especially with girls. It seems to reach its climax at the age of nineteen and twenty in man, and between sixteen and eighteen in woman. The mean brain weight of the adult male is 1,400 grams, of the adult female 1,275 grams. The reduction of weight due to senile atrophy, begins with man at about the age of eighty, with woman about at seventy. There have, however, been observed numerous individual exceptions. Incidentally, the heaviest brain ever weighed was that of the Russian writer Tourgueneff, with 2,120 grams, and the lightest that of the French statesman Gambetta, weighing less than 1,160 grams.—N. Y. Tribune.

For some time workmen have been digging a large well about half a mile west of the Douglas Reduction works, it being intended to supply water for the various uses of the plant. Last Wednesday at a depth of 180 feet, a flow of water was encountered that, as far as they have been able to test it, will yield over 300,000 gallons a day.—International.
